

OCT 2018 • Antonio Galloni
vinous
explore all things wine

95
points

The 2012 Barbaresco Riserva Camp Gros Martinenga is still a baby, but it possesses striking classicism and nuance. Deep and racy, but also finely sketched, the 2012 is destined to drink beautifully for quite some time. Another year in bottle has only done the 2012 good. Today, the Camp Gros comes across as more structured and classically austere than it did last year.

FAMILY OWNED, ESTATE BOTTLED WINES

OCT 2018 • Antonio Galloni
vinous
explore all things wine

95
points

The 2012 Barbaresco Riserva Camp Gros Martinenga is still a baby, but it possesses striking classicism and nuance. Deep and racy, but also finely sketched, the 2012 is destined to drink beautifully for quite some time. Another year in bottle has only done the 2012 good. Today, the Camp Gros comes across as more structured and classically austere than it did last year.

FAMILY OWNED, ESTATE BOTTLED WINES

OCT 2018 • Antonio Galloni
vinous
explore all things wine

95
points

The 2012 Barbaresco Riserva Camp Gros Martinenga is still a baby, but it possesses striking classicism and nuance. Deep and racy, but also finely sketched, the 2012 is destined to drink beautifully for quite some time. Another year in bottle has only done the 2012 good. Today, the Camp Gros comes across as more structured and classically austere than it did last year.

FAMILY OWNED, ESTATE BOTTLED WINES

OCT 2018 • Antonio Galloni
vinous
explore all things wine

95
points

The 2012 Barbaresco Riserva Camp Gros Martinenga is still a baby, but it possesses striking classicism and nuance. Deep and racy, but also finely sketched, the 2012 is destined to drink beautifully for quite some time. Another year in bottle has only done the 2012 good. Today, the Camp Gros comes across as more structured and classically austere than it did last year.

FAMILY OWNED, ESTATE BOTTLED WINES

OCT 2018 • Antonio Galloni
vinous
explore all things wine

95
points

The 2012 Barbaresco Riserva Camp Gros Martinenga is still a baby, but it possesses striking classicism and nuance. Deep and racy, but also finely sketched, the 2012 is destined to drink beautifully for quite some time. Another year in bottle has only done the 2012 good. Today, the Camp Gros comes across as more structured and classically austere than it did last year.

FAMILY OWNED, ESTATE BOTTLED WINES

OCT 2018 • Antonio Galloni
vinous
explore all things wine

95
points

The 2012 Barbaresco Riserva Camp Gros Martinenga is still a baby, but it possesses striking classicism and nuance. Deep and racy, but also finely sketched, the 2012 is destined to drink beautifully for quite some time. Another year in bottle has only done the 2012 good. Today, the Camp Gros comes across as more structured and classically austere than it did last year.

FAMILY OWNED, ESTATE BOTTLED WINES