The 2011 Fornace, a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Sangiovese, is another generous, open-knit wine from Selvapiana. There is plenty of depth and intensity to match the wine's powerful personality. Grilled herbs, tobacco, menthol and pine and balsamic-inflected overtones grace the juicy, giving finish. Although the Fornace is a gorgeous wine in its own right, it's hard to compete with the Sangioveses in the hills of Rufina.
