This famed monopole of the Marchesi di Grésey, with its generous sweep of western and southern exposures in a natural amphitheatre, has produced a lovely, genteel 2021, with little evidence of drought or excessive heat. Having matured for a year in barriques, it goes into botti for a year; it has emerged with soothing notes of powdery sage, violet, lemon blossom and vanilla over alpine strawberry fruit of great finesse. The entry is limpid and tender, its firm acidity and core of sleek, perfectly groomed tannins gradually pulling it taut and upright. On the back, it relaxes once more, slipping effortlessly over the tongue and leaving behind a perfume of strawberries and lilacs.
