The 2018 Lagone is a dry, medium-bodied red wine with a medium amount of tannin that's firm without intruding upon the wine's ripe fruitiness or its richly supple texture. The wine's aromas and flavors suggest plum, red cherry, wild berries, herbal notes, smoke, cedar and spice; while the aroma is not explosive, the flavors are pronounced in your mouth, and easy to discover. The wine has depth from its high acidity, and it shows strong length across the palate – more so than you might expect in a fairly inexpensive wine. Good grapes and good winemaking all around. And a real change of pace from Tuscany's dominant Sangiovese.
