The depth of color alone of the 1995 Vino Nobile di Montepulciano Vigna Asinone is something to behold, opening to a display of dusty dried cherries, roses and flowery undergrowth. The textures are silky-smooth and completely resolved between wood, tannins, acid and fruit, remaining juicy and vibrant yet also salty. Other than its mature harmony, little else can give away the 1995's age, tapering off to hints of black tea and sour citrus that keeps the mouth watering throughout. What a beautiful testament to the ageability of Vino Nobile di Montepulciano.
