The charming 2017 Cabernet Bradisismo comes to life slowly in the glass, at first with dusty red and purple florals, followed by black currants, savory brown spice and a hint of camphor. It's velvety in texture yet not weighty, and well-polished, hosting smooth savory fruits that seamlessly hover across the palate, leaving dark inner florals and a caking of fine tannin in their wake. While structured and with years of cellar potential built in, this can already be enjoyed with a good decanting, as each sip seems to reveal a little something more than the one before it. You can hardly tell that this is a product of a warm vintage. The Bradisismo is matured in a combination of 50% new and 50% used barrels for 12 months. Very nice.
