The 2006 Rosso Conero Riserva Grosso Agontano is a spice box on the nose, as woody herbs, tobacco, balsamic spices, worn leather and black currants seduce the senses. This is perfectly resolved, with zesty acids maintaining a lively expression, and tart red fruits and mineral tones cascading across the palate. Nuances of plum, black currants and salted licorice all linger through the remarkably long finale, all balanced by a touch of sour citrus. The 2006 is fully mature, yet on its energy alone, should drink beautifully for many years to come. This classic Rosso Conero hails from a warm yet even vintage with well-timed rains. This was tasted from magnum.
