The 2019 Chardonnay Lowengang captivates as a whiff of crushed rocks gives way to a vivid blend of candied ginger, white flowers and peach nectar. It's deeply textural and supple on the palate, sometimes savory and sometimes sweet, with penetrating minerality offset by ripe yellow apple and almond paste. The 2021 lingers impossibly long while remaining entirely fresh, as a salty flourish gives way to a lemon rind note that puckers the cheeks. There's a lot of youthful tension here, yet complexity, too, promising years of positive development.
