The 2021 Timorasso Derthona is part of a more recent project for the team at Vietti which they began in 2017. With this vintage, they've been able to increase the percentage of estate fruit in it to about 80%. Raised in equal parts stainless steel tanks, neutral barrels, and ceramic, the wine is a pale straw color and offers resinous aromas of ripe peach, cherry blossoms, crushed herbs, and wet stone. A textural and medium-bodied white, with good viscosity as well as saline and mineral undercurrents, it shows some real aging potential for those who have the patience to stash it away. Drink over the next 8-10 years, but if opening young, decanting is recommended.
