Adami is one of the more well-known winemakers in the Prosecco region. Abele Adami is said to have been the first winemaker to present a single-vineyard Prosecco in the 1930s. Today, the winery showcases a long line of wines that continues the legacy of showing the region's sense of place, showcasing different expressions from various plots.

Adami Bosco di Gica Brut Valdobbiadene Prosecco Superiore NV was named after the forest that was once where the vineyards are now. It has a nose of overripe pear and a well-balanced palate, with bubbles that grip then release.
