The Siro Pacenti 2022 Rosso di Montalcino is overdone with a whopping 15.5% alcoholic content. The bouquet opens to dark fruit with a hint of tree resin or toasted pine nut. There is stewed black fruit and sweet blackberry. I even get a hint of meat or bone broth. The mouthfeel is surprisingly smooth, but the wine remains very big on all fronts, much more so than your standard Rosso. This is a noteworthy effort for sure, but I can't say the wine is balanced, especially considering that alcohol. Some 15,000 bottles were created.
