The 2020 Mandrone di Lohsa blossoms in the glass with a beautiful mix of dried flowers, graphite mineral tones, ground cloves, lavender and black currants. This soothes with its round textures and cooling acidity as crisp red and black fruits swirl throughout. A web of fine tannins saturates the senses as the 2020 tapers off long and classically dry, leaving a tinge of autumnal spices and a pleasantly chewy sensation. It is incredibly young today, yet 2020 possesses a lovely balance for further maturation.
