Bright gold and bright flavoured. Lemon gummies and sage, mugwort and candied grapefruit peel. It's jostling with sweetness and fair-ground frivolity but there are layers and layers of gorgeously bitter rhythms, like the soothing, healing chants of a medicine woman smoking over a soft fire of herbs and dripping lemon-peel oil and honey on your tongue. It's heavy with somnolent richness and yet so very bright like hot yellow white-shaft sunlight on your eyelids when you're lying in the grass on a summer afternoon, drifting. Chill it right down and drink it in the grass, chamomile under your heels, a bee in your ear, reading a great book
