With a library collection that dates back to 1937, Badia a Coltibuono's Riserva is the estate's most historic bottling. Quantities were down in 2020 due in part to hot and dry conditions in the summer, but the wine's signature elegance endures. Demure and pretty, it entices with lilac, thyme blossom and tobacco. There's a sense of weightlessness, though no lack of flavour or density. Lavender-tinged ripe cherry is hemmed in by tight tannins. Classic but not dusty-and certainly not chasing any trends -this may not be the longest-lived edition but it's so appetisingly drinkable now. Organic.
