Perla Terra Barolo DOCG - 2021

This is a very pleasant and affordable wine that could be termed Barolo light. The importer had a hand in its production, sourcing grapes from the various villages in this northwestern Italian region and putting together what was once termed a shippers' wine, not meant to be a blockbuster but rather a good introductory bottle. This has smooth black raspberry and blackberry flavors that allow for easy drinking without the assertive tannins that Nebbiolo wines from this appellation normally exhibit and which add to their reputation but also their need for aging.
