The 2015 Brunello di Montalcino Vecchie Vigne bursts from the glass with a seductive array of sweet spices, minty herbs, a dusting of cacao, and dried black cherries. It is silken and voluptuous, with depths of ripe cherry-berry fruits elevated by juicy acidity as a framework of fine tannins mounts toward the close. This wine is so giving and fresh, tapering off long and structured yet still so pleasurable as hints of sour wild berries pinch at the cheeks. A fantastic showing.
