This is the oldest sample in this mini-retrospective from Garofoli. The 2008 Castelli di Jesi Verdicchio Riserva Classico Podium represents a big jump back in time, and the wine's aromas are fittingly aged and evolved as a result. Preserved lemon and dried apricot cede to honey, saffron, aniseed, and a spicy touch of freshly milled white pepper. I'm sure this bottle would be difficult to find now, but it does offer a very unique and rewarding drinking experience. The overall lesson? The Verdicchio grape can absolutely age 10 years or more.
